To whom it may concern,

When looking into IT for my company you would not believe how many other companies there were out there in cyberspace willing and eager to help me.

But with quotations to supply a complete package coming through to me in what seems an alien language I was getting further and further out of my technical depth.

It became apparent to me very quickly that CS4B were talking to me in English and in regular English which meant I didn't feel inferior discussing a subject that is not only very important in the running of my business but essential in the continued growth of my business.

From a stand-alone PC on each one of my desks in the office to a full server operated system allowing my sales guy's to access files from anywhere in the world was extremely easy and to my surprise not expensive, the guy's at CS4B were extremely professional from sales to installation to aftercare and service.

Well done CS4B for making something that could be a daunting task to something that was really easy to understand and very easy to implement.

I have no reservations at all in recommending CS4B to any of my customers, colleagues and friends.

Thanks guys
